Learning to Fly: A Festival of the Arts and Sciences

Taking Flight with Noah’s Wife:

Reading & Discussion with Novelist Rebecca Kanner

7 pm UWMC Auditorium

Rebecca Kanner holds a Master of Fine Arts in Fiction Writing from Washington University in St. Louis. Her writing has won an Associated Writing Programs Award and a Loft Mentorship Award. Her stories have been published in numerous journals and her personal essay, “Safety,” is listed as a Notable Essay in Best American Essays 2011. Her first novel, “Sinners and the Sea,” was published by Howard Books, an imprint of Simon and Schuster, in April 2013. She is a freelance-writer and teaches writing at the Loft in Minneapolis. Kanner will be reading excerpts from “Sinners and the Sea.” The author will answer questions from the audience and copies of the novel will be available for purchase.

Learning to Fly: A Festival of the Arts and Sciences

S.T.E.M.

UWMC Science Labs 9 am-3 pm.

Science IDOLS (Individuals Discovering Opportunities for Leadership and Success) is a full-day workshop designed for middle school boys that introduces them to a variety of STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering or Math) careers. The goal is to help kick-start their career interests and coursework selections and provide hands-on experiences while learning about a variety of exciting careers. The students will choose from a variety of 60-minute career sessions taught by local professionals who explain how they put their knowledge of STEM subjects to use in the real world. The “Learning to Fly” theme will include sessions that highlight astronomy, physics, building instruments of flight and flight navigation.

Learning to Fly:
A Festival of the Arts and Sciences
Nothing Routine:
Perspectives on Flight
7 pm, UWMC Auditorium
Jon Helminiak has explored over 60 different nations – from Chile to Myanmar, Scandinavia to Nepal-through self-planned solo wilderness trips. Most recently, he was the first American to complete a solo kayaking expedition along the coast of Oman, on the northeastern edge of the Arabian Peninsula. Helminiak owns Bonanza Aviation, LLC, which he founded with his father, Raymond, who co-piloted a B-17 Flying Fortress as a member of the Eighth Air Force stationed in England. In his presentation, Helminiak will take the audience on a virtual flight around the world to share how flight became an integral part of his personal desire to live a non-traditional life rooted in adventure and exploration.
